

View a user's Storylines & Posts

Step 1: User is presented with the home page and needs to sign into his/her environment.

Step 2: The user click's the "Sign In" link & signs into the application

Step 3: After being signed in, the user is redirected to their workspace

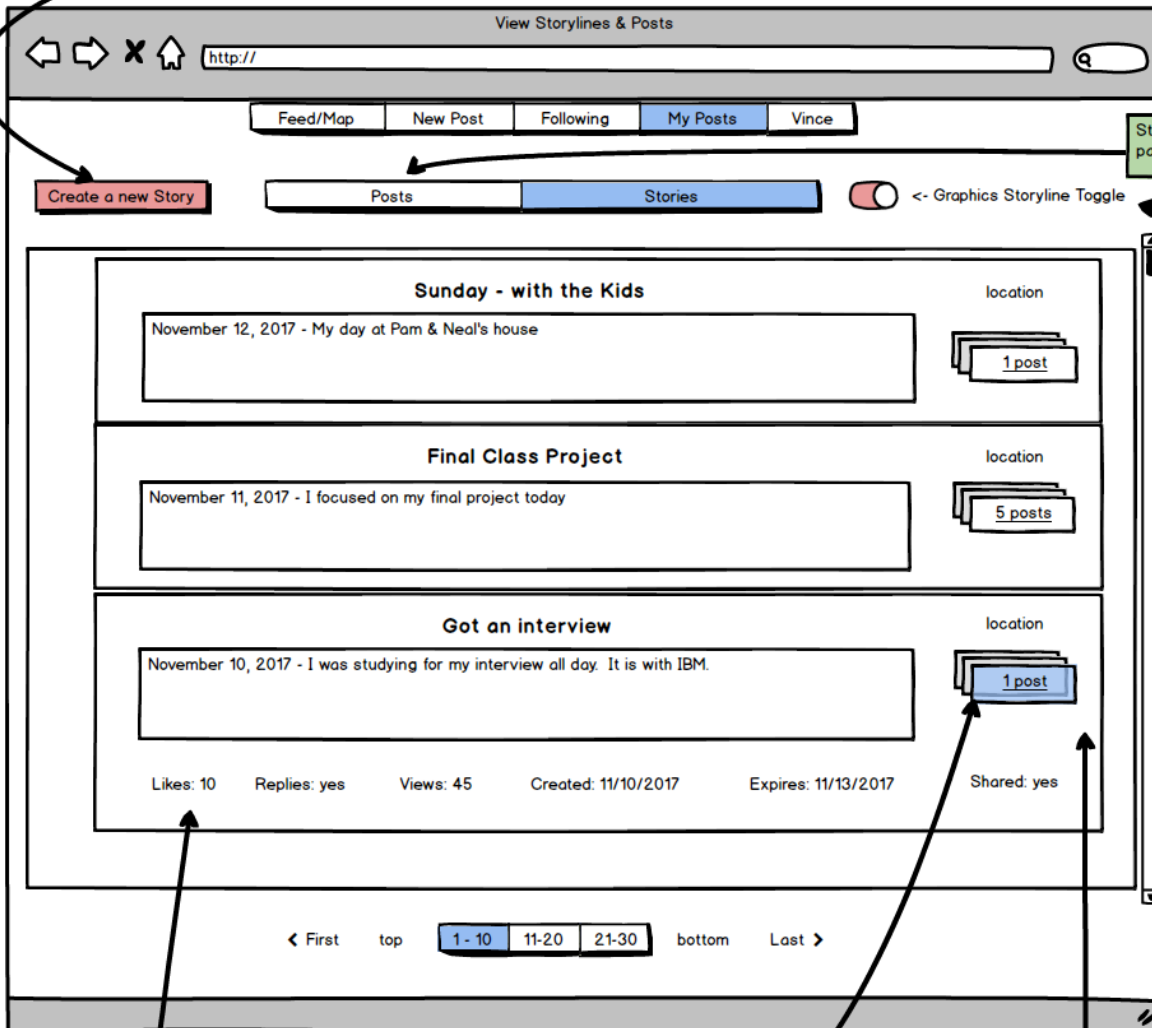

Step 4: My Posts - Posts may or may not associate to a storyline. A toggle allows viewing each in chronological order (newest first). This is where my component starts.....

This component will be developed at some point, and this button will re-direct there.

This button will be omitted if it is decided that to create a storyline, one must first create a post.

Step 6: View your post that are not part of a story line. See mockup #2

This is the Kaz idea where shared storylines can be displayed as a bubble of varying size depending on activity.

Step #5: The post box will be clickable and will go one level deeper into the storyline. See mock-up #3

Sunday - 11/12/2017 location

I had an amazing day with my family today. Helped my son-in-law fix his sheetrock. Pam made dinner for everyone and I got ot play with my grandchildren in their backyard all day.

...boy it was cold today!

Lost my Keys today 11/1/2017 location

I went to the bank and cashed in a bunch of change that I have been accumulating. I then went to the post office to get my office mail.

I came home put my keys on the counter and haven't seen them since. I have gone through everything and they are no where. I really do not want to spend $300 for a new set, but I think I do not have a choice.
